According to a Census Bureau report, there were 40.3 million people age 65 and older on April 1, 2010, up 5.3 percent from 35 million in 2000 (and just 3.1 million in 1900). In order to help meet the growing demand for physicians in the post-acute & long-term care setting, the Foundation invites fellows, residents, and advanced practitioners to participate in the Foundation’s Futures Program. The Futures Program is an intensive one-day learning experience held in conjunction with AMDA – The Society for Post-Acute and Long-Term Care Medicine’s Annual Conference 2020, to expose practitioners to the numerous career opportunities available in post-acute & long-term care.

In a survey of past participants, 92% of physicians indicated that the Futures Program provided them with enough information to make an informed decision about their place in post-acute & long-term care medicine.

Participants selected for this competitive award will receive the following benefits:
- Admission to the Foundation Futures Program on April 2, 2020
- 3-Day Registration to AMDA – The Society for Post-Acute and Long-Term Care Medicine Annual Conference 2020 from April 3-5, 2020 in Chicago, IL
- AMDA-The Society membership for one year
- Access to discounted resources and networking opportunities

In addition to the benefits listed above, participants who are granted a full award will also receive the following:
- Transportation to the meeting in accordance with the Foundation travel policies
- Lodging for four nights from April 1-5, 2020 (to be shared with one Futures Program participant)

Please note that a very limited number of full awards will be offered.
